LETTER from the EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Leslie Forrester
Executive Director

The Arts Mean Business in Springfield. If you've been involved in the arts in any capacity, you've probably always known this to be the truth. In addition to the impact the arts have on lives and quality of life, the arts greatly contribute to the local, state, and national economy.

In 2016, the SRAC participated in the Arts & Economic Prosperity 5 study with Americans for the Arts, to find out exactly what that economic contribution looks like in our community. It took an entire year, 793 audience surveys, and data from 24 Springfield arts organizations to discover the depth of the impact. The results are incredibly exciting and even better than I could have imagined.

The total economic impact of the arts and culture sector in Springfield, is $26.9 million: $9.8 million in spending by arts and culture organizations and $17.1 million in spending by their audiences.

The study used four economic measures to define the impact. Specifically in Springfield, the arts and culture sector:

- Supports 1,065 full-time equivalent jobs
- Pays $20.5 million in household income to residents
- Generates $1.3 million in local government revenue
- Generated $1 million in state government revenue

The impact is substantial and real. Without the arts, not only would we lose a primary contributor to quality of life, but we would also lose a significant economic generator. Sponsors, members, donor, and investors can be reassured that the arts industry produces a return on investment many times over.

This is a story that we as arts advocates (and if you are reading this letter, you are an arts advocate) must continue to shout from the rooftops. This year, talk with your legislators and the Governor to push for continued funding for the arts. Knowing that our state's budget situation is difficult, we will have to work extra hard to ensure the state continues investing the arts. We will need your help to keep the conversation going with policymakers. The Arts Mean Business in Springfield!

Sincerely,
Leslie Forrester

LETTER from the BOARD PRESIDENT

Jennifer Jester
2017-2018 President

As President of the Board of the Springfield Regional Arts Council, I want to recognize you. YOU LOVE ART. Within our sometimes chaotic daily lives, it might be your inspiration, your place of peace, your sanctuary.

Your support makes ART happen in Springfield and our surrounding communities. Your membership contribution helps keep costs down for art classes, exhibits, performances, and helps support the arts council in its role as a lifeblood "hub" for so many arts organizations that house their offices and programs within our facilities.

Your belief in arts innovation helps to promote our rich history and culture, our diversity, and the unique heritage of the Ozarks along with the fresh new voices of youth and hope that art inspires.

Within Springfield, your contribution supports quality of life, adds value to your life and hundreds of other lives in our community. We mean business with the arts in Springfield, and provide one of the biggest contributions to our community financial health.

TOGETHER we can use the power of art to transform and inspire our community. Each year our programs grow stronger and so do we. Our amazing staff, the board, and our volunteers provide a never ending stream of support for the Springfield Regional Arts Council and can't be thanked enough for the contributions they make of time, money, and resources.

We look forward to making new connections and strengthening our existing friendships. We look forward to new partnerships to help us cultivate philanthropic success and continue to "transform lives and enrich our community through the arts."

THANK YOU for your love of ART and for everything it stands for. Your investment is your voice. What will you say for the arts this year? We need your support more than ever.

With gratitude and solidarity,
Jennifer Jester
